

February 25, 2005

PRIVATAIR ADDS SEVEN NEW AIRCRAFT TO ITS FLEET

International business aviation specialist PrivatAir announced today seven aircraft had been added to its fleet of managed aircraft since the beginning of the year.

The aircraft include four aircraft based at PrivatAir's West Palm Beach facility: a Lear 55, a Falcon 2000, a Hawker 400XP, as well as a KingAir 350. Further additions to the fleet are a Falcon 900EX in Denver, Colorado, and two aircraft in Teterboro, New Jersey: another Falcon 900EX, and a Lear 60. All of these aircraft are available for charter through PrivatAir's charter sales network.

Mark Reichin, PrivatAir's Senior VP Charter Sales stated, "With the addition of these new aircraft to the PrivatAir fleet, we are not only becoming more geographically diverse, but are also able to offer our clients a broader range of aircraft types. So now, even more than before, PrivatAir is able to offer the perfect solution to any travel requirement."

These latest additions to the PrivatAir managed fleet confirm the growing popularity of the company's aircraft management program among aircraft owners, who appreciate the significant savings they can achieve from PrivatAir's purchasing power, as well as reducing the cost of ownership by making their aircraft available for charter when not using them under the company's Charter Assistance Program.